Have you or a family member been seriously injured in an accident?

If you or a family member has been seriously injured in a car accident, there are certain ways to recover compensation in Ontario. Firstly, anyone that is injured in a car accident is eligible to receive accident benefits under their own insurance policy - regardless of who was at-fault for the accident. If you are injured, you need to immediately contact your own insurance company and inform them of the accident. Applying for and receiving accident benefits will not raise your premiums if you were not at fault. You can receive benefits such as income replacement (to replace your wages), caregiver benefits (if you were a caregiver), rehabilitation and medical benefits (to pay your physiotherapy and other care), attendant care, lost education expenses, housekeeping benefits, and death and funeral expenses. The amounts you receive will be extensively greater if you are catastrophically injured.

Secondly, you can sue an at-fault driver in Ontario for compensation. You may be able to recover compensation for pain and suffering to compensate you for your disabilities and how they negatively affect your daily life. You can also claim out-of-pocket expenses, as well as your past and future income loss that is normally assumed by your current income stream. You can also claim future care costs for the rest of your life to assist you with your daily living, such as future rehabilitation, medicine, counseling or assistive devices.

The Ontario motor vehicle insurance system is very complex one. We have been helping accident victims recover compensation for over 36 years. If you or a family member has been injured, please do not hesitate to call me for a free no obligation consultation. We can help you secure the proper financial compensation to protect you and your family's future.
